

Quantum Optics and Quantum Communications using Non-Gaussian States of Light

During recent years, much progress has been achieved for generating non-Gaussian states of the light, such as Fock states, or optical “Schrödinger’s cat” states. Such states can be used for various quantum information protocols, including remote entanglement preparation, or quantum repeaters. We will review these recent developments, and discuss open perspectives for quantum information processing and communications.

Orateur: Prof. GRANGIER, Philippe (Laboratoire Charles Fabry, Institut d’Optique Graduate School, 91127 Palaiseau, France)

Classification de thématique: Introduction: the nature of light