

Conteneurs

- A container is a file that contains the code and its execution environment
- It allows you to easily "transport" your code as well as all its libraries and dependencies
- You can thus be sure to control the execution environment of your applications
- The most used container technologies are Docker, Singularity....